gation to ascertain whether there were not certain classes of public works which might advantageously be undertaken by the government.

John Morley admitted that it was the duty of the government to suppress disorder, but he feared they would fall now as before, in 1888. An increase of outrages, he said, always followed an increase in the number of evictions. Nobody could interpret outrages in Ireland as effectively as the Irish themselves, and he believed that if Ireland was right when it said that if England was right, then it was said that the rest of Ireland would stop them.

In conclusion, Mr. Morley said: "We shall never make a step forward toward the permanent settlement of the Irish question until we have given Ireland a statutory parliament and an Irish executive."

The amendment to the address in reply to the queen's speech proposed by the Farmer's Association is substantially as follows:

"We demand that your Majesty grant us, owing to the heavy fall in the prices of agricultural products, that the greatest difficulty will be experienced during the coming winter by the Irish tenant farmers in the payment of the present rents. Many are even now unable to pay anything. The numerous evictions resulting from the lack of land and of rent, are causing great suffering and extreme danger to the welfare of social order will be the result."

"We deprecate the transfer of the loss due to the inability of tenants to pay rents from the owners of the land to tax-payers of Great Britain and Ireland, by any extension of state-assisted purchases on the basis of rents which were fixed when prices were much exalted over the Bulgarian crisis."

It is asserted that only now favors to the coup d'état in Bulgaria has taken everybody by surprise, the British cabinet being no exception. A dispatch from Sofia says Prince Alexander was astonished. Karavelov, the prime minister, entered the palace at Sofia and explained to him that the public opinion of Bulgaria was dissatisfied with his policies and demanded the deposition of Prince Alexander and said: "I see my friends I can not resist." His enemies had at the sudden breaking of the war upon him. M. Karavelov had managed the whole affair with such secrecy that the only indication of the coming storm was the mutinous spirit noticeable among the troops. Prince Alexander had forbidden the circulation of papers among them which openly declared that alone was the only obstacle to the union, but his orders in full regard were not obeyed.

The action of the peasant population for Prince Alexander personally popularized him.

A telegram from Bucharest says the Roumanians are very much excited over the Bulgarian crisis.

It is asserted that only now favors to the coup d'état are permitted and that the closest members of the excited over all news and a strict watch over all persons leaving the country.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that "the Russian press was surprised at the deposition of Prince Alexander than it was when Romania revolted in 1856. The newspapers here generally for some time past have believed that the political tension in Bulgaria foreshadowed a catastrophe.

"This is undoubtedly Russia's work, and raises the whole eastern question, which is simply another of the Russian shall extend her borders to the Danubians.

Prince Alexander has made the sovereign of Bulgaria by an assembly of nobles at Turkey in 1870 at the suggestion of the powers. By the treaty of Berlin in 1878

Eastern Roumania was made a province under the direct military and political authority of the sultan, subject, however, to the supervision of the powers. Eastern Rou-mania was left tributary to the sultan in name.

It was constituted as a hereditary and constitutional principality. The purpose of forming these two provinces was to make a barrier between Russia and Turkey, and Russia has ever since been engaging to weaken the barricade by making

Russian influence dominant in these province.

Last year Eastern Roumania rebelled against Turkish rule, and the uprising required in the name of that province and Bulgaria under Prince Alexander—the promotion of a national object, which was fomented by Russian influence in Bulgaria under the Russian egis, to depose Prince Alexander, and to place upon the throne a ruler who would be friendly to Russia.

Sylvester, a negro, attempted to outrage a 16-year-old daughter of John Lapp, a farmer, using calomel and opium to accomplish his purpose. The negro fled into the woods and ran to her parents' room, while the negro went back to his room.

Next morning the girl identified Sylvester as her assailant, a warrant was issued and a party of men started to hunt him up, finding him in a hut and a struggle ensued and he was about to shoot up when a police officer who was watching from a distance intervened.

The negro was taken to the police station, but he refused to receive him because the offense was committed outside the city limits. Sylvester was therefore released, and has not yet been found. The police captain who refused to hold Sylvester will be hauled over the coals by the police superintendent.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 24.—The secretary of the navy has received—from the naval board of inspection, at New York, detailed reports of two vessels which can be used in case of emergency.

The ships are the Newport, of the Pacific, and the Amazing, and the London, of the Cunard.

The former was built by John French &

Sons in 1884. In regard to the Louisiana, the board reports that in strength of hull, general construction, engine-power, speed, and ability to carry a battery of six incipus, she is superior to many of the first class foreign vessels which are regarded as auxiliary navy vessels. The report on the Newport is equally favorable.

The Influence of Masonry Upon the Order—Candidates and Ceremonies of Initiation—Lodge Room Equality—Morality Required by the Laws.

The origin of the system of secret political societies, known in Italy as Carbonari, or the ancient date of its inception, has little known than that of the Volumi Garibaldi. Indeed, the Neapolitan Carbonari have a tradition that it existed during the middle ages, and after spread over the Netherlands and France.

The Abbe Barreau stated that it was established and in full force in France during the reign of Francis I, while M. Charles Detourne affirms that the secret association of Cheminonnes (charred burners) had existed in the Knights Templars.

The grand lodge of Carbonari was composed of delegates from provincial lodges and of masters at larger or honorary members.

Established in the city of Naples, and it was constantly in session. Its business was to bind lodges and confederations for new lodges, revising and confirming, or rejecting rules and regulations submitted by subordinate lodges, and, in short, exercising a general governing supervision over the order similar to that of the Masonic Grand Lodge, after which it was itself patterned.

INFLUENCE OF MASONRY.

Indeed, Masonry seems to have given, not only the Carbonari, but, almost every one of the secret societies of medieval and modern times, their forms of internal government and organization. One can trace its influence in the Illuminati and Tugendorden of Germany, the Philadelphians of France, and the Carbonari of Italy, with equal certainty and clearness. If proof of the influence of Masonry on the Carbonari, other than the internal economy of the lodges, were wanted, it is found in the fact that all Masonic Lodges, under the fire of the cool, infidel, always suffered severely. The air began to grow hot with perjury smokes. We saw that the hasty, half-baked hands had disappeared from the Confederate earthworks, leaving horses, and shell began to howl by us. Their guns were getting the range. Then their guns were silent.

We sprang in and out from the three-inch gun and roared angrily. To our left, to our right, other batteries opened, and along the Confederate canons sent forth their balls searching for the range. Then their guns were silent.

It was daylight. We, the light artillerymen, were heated with battle. The smoke of our nerves was over us. The sun was two hours from the horizon. One wall in lines of the other, and both lying down, the rays were firing over them. The Confederate pickets firing birds, and ran back to their main lines of work. Then they turned and warmed the battery with long range rifle practice, knocking men over here, killing another there, breaking the leg of a horse yonder, and generally behaving in an exasperating manner.

The Confederate infantry was always much more effective than their artillery, and the men under the fire of the cool, infidel, always suffered severely. The air began to grow hot with perjury smokes. We saw that the hasty, half-baked hands had disappeared from the Confederate earthworks, leaving horses, and shell began to howl by us. Their guns were getting the range. Then their guns were silent.

CHARGING THE BATTERIES.

Sudden, like a bolt from the sky, came our troops, who were lying on the ground in front of us, and ran to their feet and dashed at the Confederate earthworks at a run. Instantly those works were manned. Cannon belched forth a torrent of canister; the works glowed brightly with musketry; a storm of lead and iron struck the blue line, cutting gaps in it. We struck the blue line, and some of us were killed.

ON THE INCREASE.

THE HARVEY OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

(From the Louisville Courier Journal.)

The greed of distillers has urged them to push their distillations so as to get as much whiskey from the grain as possible.

From the old-time standard of one gallon and a half they have increased the product to three, then to four, and some distillers boast of getting even five gallons of whiskey from a bushel of grain. This increased product is obtained by raising the temperature until both the volatile and the essential oils from destructive distillation are thrown off, and consequently an increased percentage of fusel oil (deadly poison) is found mixed with the whiskey and cannot easily be gotten rid of. This fusel oil will seriously damage the stomach of those who drink it; or if the stomach escape, the poison affects the kidneys, producing glandular degeneration, a form of Bright's disease, which is to-day alarmingly prevalent and on the increase. Fusel oil is closely allied to the real cocaine lying and being in the third ward in said city and described as follows: "A preparation of Peruvian Bark, Sherry Wine and Iron. This remedy purifies and nourishes the blood, invigorates the whole system, and is especially beneficial in cases of Nervous Debility, Liver and Kidney Complaints. Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Neuralgia, Headache, affection of the skin, and all diseases originating in a bad condition of the blood. It is a certain preventive and cure for Fever and Ague, and all persons of sedentary habits, and those troubled with sleeplessness, languor, or indisposition to exercise, will derive great relief from its use. Prompt result will follow its use in cases of sudden exhaustion and it will prove a valuable restorative for all convalescents. As a Nutritive, it is used in the treatment of impaired nutrition, impoverishment of the blood, and in all the various forms of general ability."

LAST NIGHT.

[FOR THE JANESVILLE GAZETTE.]
Last night the sight-gang woke me.
It sang in the golden moonlight.
From out the wooded hill, I opened my windows gently,
To look on the dreamy dew,
And off the bird, my darling, Was singing, singing of you.

I think of you in the daytime, I dream of you at night;
I wake and would you were here love,
And tears are blinding my sight;
I hear a low breath in the lime tree,
The wind is floating thro',
And off the night, my darling, Is singing, singing for you.

I think not, I can forget you, I could not the I would;
I see you in all around me,
The stream, the night, the wood,
The flowers are slumbering so gently,
The stars above the blue, O! heaven itself, my darling, Is praying, praying for you.

position is a good one, however, and we congratulate Mr. Herriell upon his appointment.

—The Office of Sheriff.

The columns of the Gazette have been open during the present campaign for the introduction of candidates, and in bringing a name thus prominently before the county the paper has endeavored to do so without partiality or preference. So in presenting the name of Mr. George Babcock, of Clinton, for the office of sheriff, at the request of his friends, the paper is simply doing what it has done and would do for any candidate.

—Mr. W. E. Swan, formerly a resident of this city, but now a resident of Andover, Dakota, was awarded the contract of sinking the artesian well for our water works. Mr. Swan sunk the well at the fair grounds, and has just completed an artesian well at Andover, 8-inch bore, which flows with a pressure at the surface of 175 pounds to the square inch, which is greater pressure than is required for fire pressure of the direct pressure system for water works.

—The Rock Band concert company first appeared at Crystal Palace, London, England, where they remained a year. They afterwards gave their charming entertainments in the chief cities of Great Britain, spending several weeks or months in each place. Everywhere their performances were listened to with delight by immense audiences. They have given entertainments in the Eastern and Middle states of this country with no less success. In Chicago 2,000 people greeted them with enthusiasm at Fairwell hall. At the last Chautauqua assembly they gave five entertainments before thousands of people. At Lappin's hall Sept. 1, to continue 40 days.

OBITUARY.

GEORGE ROBINSON PEIRCE.

George Robinson Peirce, infant son of Dr. Charles T. and Agnes Peirce, died this morning at a quiet pasture on the hill, after a brief, but painful illness. Many friends will tenderly sympathize with the stricken parents in this bereavement.

Gentle Shepherd, thou hast stilled Now thy little lamb's brief weeping, Ah, how peaceful pale and mild In its narrow bed's sleeping; And the wind is floating thro', Heaven's bright sunbeam above.

The funeral will take place at the family residence to-morrow, at 3 o'clock, No. 9 South Cherry street.

passed a resolution recommending the congressional convention which met on May

Frank Hard Knows What He Wants.

TOMATO, Ohio, Aug. 26.—Hon. Frank Hard has announced himself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress in the Toledo district.

Congressional Nominations.

The First district (Maine) labor convention nominated D. O. Morton for congress Tuesday.Hon. W. F. Scott was nominated for congress Tuesday by the Democrats of the Twenty-seventh Pennsylvania district, against his positive refusal to be a candidate.The Democrats of the Eleventh Indiana district Tuesday nominated J. C. Branney, of Huntington, for congress. Nash district Prohibitionists put up Hon. Charles Hendry, of Howard county.Seventh Iowa district Republicans nominated Morrison Billings, a circular notorious special twenty clause intervening to protect the interests of labor.

Courtland of Environment.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 26.—Acting Commissioner of Stenologists of the general post office issued a circular notice, notifying the postal agents of the post office that their pay from allowances, in lieu of subsidies, under the appropriation for the current year, will be $8.50 instead of $8 per day, the allowance for the last fiscal year.The acting commissioner had also notified revenue and registers of land offices that in accordance with the provisions of the act passed by the last congress, making appropriate appropriations for the current year, all fees collected by registrars and revenue officers, which exceed their salaries beyond $1,000 per year, must be turned over to the treasury, excepting what may be necessary to pay actual cost of clerical services employed exclusively in contested cases. The effect of this new law will be to reduce the composition of these officers about 50 per cent.Referring to the labor question he declared the man who pretends to have remedied what will remove him, and make every thing harmonious and happy as is possible, is a dangerous and empiric.
He favored a full and thorough examination by having men of the question why there is so much difference between wages in this country and England, Germany and France.
Organization was the right of the workman as it was of any other class of citizens, and these should be no obstacles to its full and free operation, provided that the persons who propose others to rule him will not interfere.
In regard to the existence of 500 thousand bonded slaves laborers, who were entering the mechanical and semi-mechanical field, and who, if the Democrats continued in power, would be unable to fix the price or control the value of their labor, and would, therefore, be a fatal competitor in all the fields of toil.The labor question and our relations with Mexico were treated at length, and the speaker was very sorry to find that what we consider the institution of arbitration regarding the former and the protection of property of the state department toward Mexico. The Democratic party, he said, had gratuitously increased our humiliation regarding Canada by an attempt to admit Canadian products from the United States, while American laborers were denied the privilege of fishing in Canadian waters. Although deprecating war any direction as a great evil, the speaker said, the people were wiser of fearing of outrages committed by the Canadian government upon the United States flag on the high seas. He thought, however, that war with Mexico without an appeal to arbitration would be a cruel crime.Regarding the question of prohibition, and especially the attitude of the Prohibitionists of Maine toward the Republican party, Mr. Bain declared that he was not influenced by the members of that party organized as he had, say, to enforce the prohibition of the liquor traffic in Maine. There are some singular features pertaining to this movement. The Republican party in Maine from the day of its organization has been pledged to prohibition—enacting the principal statute now in force in 1857-8, and since amending it from year to year as the leading temperance men requested. The changes made have been effective have averaged only one for every year since the original law was passed.The third party in their convention cheerfully testify that prohibition has been so well enforced by the Republicans that in their judgment Maine is a quarter of a century ahead of the license states in all that pertains to temperance reform. The Republicans have this year with special emphasis in their state resolutions reaffirmed their faith in prohibition and opposition to government as a pronounced supporter of the cause. But all this does not entitle the third party to prohibit. They desire a party of their own just small enough to have no effect at all, or, if possible, just large enough to throw the state into the hands of the Democratic party, which has been as constant in its hostility to prohibition as the Republican party of Maine has been constant in its fidelity to prohibition.The position and platform of the third party might, if fairly and truly interpreted, be that the Republican party of Maine has, and since amended it as a majority of the friends of temperance demanded, and has in consequence advanced Maine in all matters of temperance a quarter of a century ahead of the license states; therefore, it is resolved, that we members of a third party to prohibit will so vote as to defeat the Republican party and turn the government of Maine over to the Democratic party who will have through all these years opposed prohibition by every instrumentality in their power.Democrats, of course, with scarcely an attempt to conceal, regard the third party as their shield, that the Republican party must be killed, and they have secured the co-operation of the Democrat, of the free-trader, of the saloon proprietor, of all men who wish to keep 6,000,000 of colored people in the south disfranchised and oppressed. It is an insidious coalition, an unlawful partnership, an unholy alliance.The supporters of the third party adopt as their shield, that the Republican party must be killed, and they have secured
the co-operation of the Democrat, of the
free-trader, of the saloon proprietor, of all men who wish to keep 6,000,000 of colored people in the south disfranchised and op-
